Questions 99 to 103 are based on the following passage:

“You’ve been in love, of course! If not, you’ve got it to come. Love is like the measles; we all have to go through it. Also like the measles, we take it only once. One never need be afraid of catching it a second time. The man who has had it can go into the most dangerous places and play the most foolhardy tricks with perfect safety. He can picnic in shady woods, ramble through leafy aisles, and linger on mossy seats to watch the sunset. He fears a quiet country-house no more than he would his own club. He can join a family party to go down the Rhine. He can, to see the last of a friend, venture into the very jaws of the marriage ceremony itself. ...

No, we never sicken with love twice. Cupid spends no second arrow on the same heart. Love’s handmaids are our life-long friends. Respect, and admiration, and affection, our doors may always be left open for, but their great celestial master, in his royal progress, pays but one visit and departs. We like, we cherish, we are very, very fond of-but we never love again. A man’s heart is a firework that once in its time flashes heavenward. Meteor-like, it blazes for a moment and lights with its glory the whole world beneath. Then the night of our sordid commonplace life closes in around it, and the burned-out case, falling back to earth, lies useless and uncared for, slowly smoldering into ashes”.

Choose the most appropriate answer to each Factual Situation given in Question Nos. 161 to 163 within the scope of the Principle mentioned.

161. PRINCIPLE: A person, who lawfully brings on his land something which though harmless, but will do mischief if it escape, must keep it at his peril, and if he does not, he is answerable for all the damage.

FACTUAL SITUATION: 'A' was the owner of a mill. In order to supply it with water he constructed a reservoir upon nearby land by employing engineers and contractors. 'B' was the owner of coal mines, under lands, close to but not adjoining the premises on which the reservoir was constructed. The contractors, while excavating for the bed of the reservoir, came upon abandoned shafts and filled them with soil not suspecting that that they were abandoned mine shafts. The reservoir was completed and partly filled. Within days the bed of the reservoir gave way and burst, leading to flow of water through the channels connected with B's mine. Is 'A' liable to pay damages for loss caused to 'B'?

- (1) 'A' is not liable because there was no negligence on his part. He was not aware that the reservoir bed was connected to B's mines
 - (2) 'A' is liable to pay damages to 'B' because he brought the water on his property which would have caused mischief if it escaped and it did escape.
 - (3) 'A' is not liable because 'B' never informed him the existence of B's mines.
 - (4) 'A' is liable because he hired the services of unqualified engineers
162. PRINCIPLE: Cheating is defined as deceiving any person to deliver any property and it includes the dishonest concealment of facts. Cheating by personation means a person cheating another by pretending to be some other person, or by knowingly substituting one person for another, or representing that he or any other person is a person other than he or such other person really is.

FACTUAL SITUATION: 'A', while leaving a restaurant mistakingly picked up the umbrella of 'B' instead of his own. The next day he decided to return to the restaurant with the umbrella, hoping to find the real owner. 'C', who had never seen 'B' in person and had only communicated with 'B' through letters was on his way to the restaurant to meet 'B'. Since 'B' and 'C' had never met, it was agreed between them to identify each other at the pre-appointed spot, the restaurant door, by the clothing of 'C' and umbrella of 'B' which they had described to each other in detail. 'C' saw 'A' at the door of the restaurant and identified the umbrella. Thinking 'A' to be 'B', 'C' delivered a parcel labelled Mr. B to 'A'. 'A' received the same without protest and promptly returned home without looking for 'B'. Is 'A' guilty of cheating by personation?

- (1) 'A' is not guilty because he was going to return the umbrella to the real owner and handing over 'B's' packet to 'A' was 'C's' mistake.
- (2) 'A' is not guilty because he was overcome by a sudden temptation.
- (3) 'A' is guilty because he was aware of the mistaken identity and that the parcel was not meant for him but for 'B'.
- (4) 'A' is guilty because the parcel might have been valuable to 'B'.

163. PRINCIPLE: A consumer is a person who buys any goods or services for a consideration and uses the goods for non-commercial purposes. Exclusive use of the goods for the purposes of earning his livelihood, by means of self-employment is not considered as commercial use. A consumer can approach a consumer forum if there is a deficiency in goods or service.

FACTUAL SITUATION: 'A', a taxi driver received a car music system for free, from an electronics company through a draw of lots and installed the same in his taxi. Some time later, the music system stopped working. 'A' approached the electronics company for a replacement but the company kept delaying. Can 'A' sue the company in a consumer forum?

- (1) Yes, 'A' is not using the music system for any commercial purpose. He is just plying a taxi for earning his livelihood.
- (2) Yes 'A' there is a deficiency in goods since the music system became non-functional.
- (3) No, 'A' is using his taxi for ferrying passengers which is a commercial purpose. Hence he is not a consumer.
- (4) No, 'A' is not a consumer since he has not paid any consideration for the music system.
